

Amelia Ash Possible Ending.

Amelia walked outside, having narrowly escaped the arena. She spotted Franca, who appeared to be spying on her. "What are you doing!" Amelia shouted. Franca looked terrified, then she ran away. ^{She looked like she went} "Good riddance," ^{Good riddance,} murmured Amelia. She kept walking.

15 minutes later, Amelia met up with Audrey and Chloe. "Sorry I threw you into the dungeon," Amelia said to Audrey. "Alice made me." "That's okay," said Audrey. "Chloe and I found that the question was in this book, written by William Shakespeare." "Cool. What are you doing now? I don't have a job anymore, because Alice has decided to stop being evil, and I obviously couldn't be a herald anymore," said Amelia. "I don't know what we're doing now, but I don't want you to know about it!" said Chloe. "Sheesh," murmured Amelia under her breath. "What should I do now?"

But then she got an idea. She walked over to the harbor where all the ships were, and took one. Amelia didn't have enough food herself for a one-week journey, but, luckily, the ship contained the food and water needed.

So, Amelia got onto the boat and started rowing, day and night, until she found an island. The natives said it was called Angretopia there. Amelia decided to stay, for she wanted to Start a new life, And 5 months later, the Annetopians crowned her queen, and slowly, Amelia almost forgot her old past, and made herself believe she was native to Annetopia. But little did Amelia know that 1 person in Annetopia, other than herself, knew her secrets of her life in Brufftopia.

That person was Franca E.