Dear Mr Bruff,

Lots of things are important in life and having good education is one of them. Education is very very important, and you mentioned yourself several times that your parents pushed education. I think that you should push more education especially on homework, you should give us kids more homework, harder homework, and more education in class.

For example once you take your SAT score you can't take it again. So you should practice for it a lot and try your best. You're doing a great job of encouraging the growth mindset but your students including me need more education in class, and homework and in addition to all of these harder homeworks, you know how important it is for us to get into a good college. So please can you start doing these things?

Another example is that I know you care about us and obviously don't want us to die, and if we don't get into a good college then we won't have a good job and then we might parch or starve. I don't think any of us want to be indigent, so can you give us more homework, harder homework, and more classwork so I hope you can do that

The final reason is homework reviews classwork and lots I mean LOTS of people forget the lesson soon. So if we repeatedly do it then we can remember it forever. I heard that some people (not in this classroom) question of why we even have school. I was completely shocked when he/she told me why. That person said that we were going to forget it anyway so why should we learn it? This true example proves that kids forget things so please do my simple request.

Your student, Felix

P.S. If you really, really can't succeed into the class than give it to the willing.
