epilogue #2

Judge Moussa was watching Matthew write a book. He noticed that Matt was crossing off names of books not written by himself, but different authors, he was writing his name over the real authors name. Judge Moussa jumps into action and tries to stop Matt from taking credit for books he didn't write. Matt jumps out of his seat and sprints away. Moussa sprints after Matt. Matt runs out of the building and starts running to the ocean. With his books in his hands he dives into the water. Some people think that he swam to the island of 5th graders, and some people think he lives with the fish. Matt Cohen was never seen again.
